

Symbiosis on the Chisholm Trail: Jennifer Cocoma Hustis

Edmond artist, Jennifer Cocoma Hustis, connects to the outdoor world through her creations which range from large dramatic, bold paintings of horses, owls and other animals, to mixed-media assemblages using feathers, horse hair, paint brushes and beads. Some of her old favorites, along with many new pieces created for this exhibition are now on display in, "Symbiosis on the Chisholm Trail."

Workshop
& Reception

Meet artist Jennifer Cocoma Hustis, who will have a fun project for you to create. Enjoy the reception, food and beverages. There is no charge for this event.

One of her main paintings, Fight or Flight, is featured in the Garis Gallery of the American West, off the main lobby. It, and the other works, are only on display through Feb. 25. All but one piece is available to purchase. Jennifer's main subject is the horse, which is evident in her work. She especially likes to educate and make aware the plight of the Mustang, which is how Fight or Flight was created.

Jennifer has a Masters of Fine Arts from Pratt Institute in New York, in painting and sculpture. She also teaches classes daily in Edmond and works with non-profits, museums and communities. Much of Jennifer's work is privately commissioned.

We hope you will visit this newest exhibit, which kicks off 2017 and the Chisholm Trail 150th anniversary.
